The APTMetrics® Interviewer Experience Wins Chief Learning Officer's Gold "Learning in Practice" Award for Excellence in Technology Innovation

Westport, CT: October 20, 2022: Since 2003, Chief Learning Officer (CLO), a publication of BetterWork Media Group, has given Learning In Practice (LIP) awards to recognize learning leaders, both practitioners and providers, who demonstrate excellence in the design and delivery of workforce learning and development programs through a combination of qualities such as leadership, vision, business acumen, strategic alignment and technological application. This week, at its online LIP Awards Gala, CLO announced that APTMetrics had been given a Gold Award for Excellence in Technology Innovation in recognition of the APTMetrics Interviewer Experience structured interviewing training program.

The Interviewer Experience is an immersive, multi-media interviewer-training solution developed in partnership with clients PepsiCo and Walmart. A major objective of the product's development was to support PepsiCo's and Walmart's talent acquisition strategies by creating a robust, structured-interviewing process that would lead to higher-quality, real-world hiring decisions, measurable reductions in biased outcomes, and significant progress toward diversity, equity and inclusion goals.

"We are proud to be recognized by CLO for our Interviewer Experience interview training product," said John C. Scott, Co-founder and COO at APTMetrics. "Many hiring managers have never had any formal training on how to properly interview candidates in the talent acquisition activity, and therefore may inadvertently introduce bias into the selection process. By implementing the Interviewer Experience, organizations are much more likely to raise the quality of new hires and increase their diversity and inclusivity."
