

Matthew Riddle, M.A.

Executive Consultant

Matthew Riddle, M.A., is an executive consultant with APTMetrics. He has more than 20 years of experience in the field of leadership development. A talent management leader, Matthew drives measurable business results by leveraging deep knowledge of assessments as an executive assessor, report writer, and coach.

Matthew has extensive experience in leveraging assessments to help create meaning for leaders on their career and personal journeys. He has consulted with clients in the healthcare, finance, technology, energy, and service industries in companies such as Covance, Roche, Citi Group and Raytheon.

Prior to joining APTMetrics, Matthew was the global product director at The Leadership Circle, a leadership consultant with Development Dimensions International and an independent consultant working with senior human-resources leaders on topics such as employee selection, succession planning, performance management, high-potential identification and development.

Matthew earned his bachelor's degree in psychology from Washington and Jefferson University and his master's degree in psychology from Wake Forest University. His certifications include: Hogan's, Leadership Circle Profile, Leadership Systems Certification, LUMA's Innovation Tools Facilitator, and DDI's IM:EX Facilitator, Card Sort Master Trainer, Targeted Selection Facilitator.